IDENTIFYING POTENTIAL ABUSE

Types of abuse: physical, neglect, sexual, psychological/emotional, financial, discriminatory

**Below, we will address the first three.*

An individual who is physically abused may:

- have burns, bite marks, cuts, bruises, or welts in the shape of an object
- not want to go home
- be afraid of adults

An individual who is neglected may:

- not wear clothing that's suitable for the weather
- be dirty or unbathed
- be very hungry
- not be properly supervised

An individual who is sexually abused may:

- Be very compliant or extremely aggressive
- Be afraid of a certain person or a family member
- Have difficulty walking or sitting
- Inappropriate knowledge of sexual acts for their age

Additional notes regarding sexual abuse:

- Sexual abuse is 4 x more likely to occur for individuals with disabilities (1 in 6 boys and 1 in 4 girls with autism).
  - Perpetrators may seek out staff/volunteer roles in community recreation programs as opportunities to access vulnerable individuals.
  - Remember the Rule of 2 from the December staff newsletter: Staff and volunteers should never be alone with a participant.

PROGRAM BOUNDARIES: PHYSICAL CONTACT

CAN recognizes that in some contexts, physical touch is appropriate and helpful. Please keep the following guidelines in mind:

Importance of Independent Engagement

- Remember that fostering independent engagement in group activities with peers is an important goal for all participants.
- For example, holding hands with a 4 year old participant who requires redirection to engage in an activity or is at risk of elopement and is in an open area, holding hands may be appropriate.
- Initiating hand holding with a 4 year old who was otherwise independently participating in the activity is NOT constructive.

Skill Development

- Physical guidance may also be necessary to support skill development.
- For example, a staff or volunteer may provide a physical prompt to show participants where to put their hands on a baseball bat, basketball, etc.
- Staff and volunteers should 'narrate' their actions in cases where physical guidance is necessary, moving slowly and approaching the participant from the front e.g., "I'm going to show you where to put your hands. One hand on the side of the basketball. And one hand on top of the basketball."

As a guiding principle:

- A bystander should be able to easily recognize that the physical touch provided is to meet the needs of the participant, not to meet the needs of the staff or volunteer.
- For example, a young child may choose to sit right next to you at a team meeting when seeking comfort or reassurance.
- In contrast, staff and volunteers should not be pulling children into their laps who are otherwise engaged appropriately.

Using Safety-Care™

- This is only used by a Support Team member as an absolute last resort.
- Safety-Care™ Behavioral Safety Training is a program that provides the skills and competencies to effectively prevent, minimize, and manage behavioural challenges.
- Our Support Team has received training in this program to know when a hands-on restraint is necessary for participant safety.
- All use of Safety-Care™ procedures must be documented.

We appreciate the commitment that our staff and volunteers have in ensuring the utmost safety of participants in our programs.
